Tonight's Game

Tigers Host Colorado Indians

After their best offensive showing of the season, the Fort Hays State Tigers have an opportunity to act as the spoiler in the Rocky Mountain Conference race by upsetting the heavily favored Southern Colorado Indians tonight.

The Indians, paced by a rugged two-pronged ground attack and a good aerial arm, bring in a 3-1 overall mark and a 2-1 conference record. Matt Young and Al Brooks provide the ground power while quarterback Barry Loos is hitting .541 of his passes.

Fort Hays State faces the seventh game of the season winless but with renewed spirit and a feeling that the Tiger triple option will produce a solid ground game. Last weekend, Southern was idle but the Tigers were producing a devastating 335 yards rushing and 41 passing for a total offense of 376 yards.

While the Tiger offense was "blowing its mind," the Bengal defense was hard at work trying to stop Bruce Cerone. The Emporia rushing game was held to 137 yards while the passing attack netted 155 yards, 112 of that by Cerone. The biggest difference between the two clubs was the score 34-7 for Emporia.

Another feature of the Fort Hays homecoming tilt was the coming of age of Tommy Evans, the "Mini-Brute" of the backfield. Evans literally stomped out 267 yards to set a new single game rushing record. The old mark was held by Bob Johnson, 264 yards, set against Emporia on homecoming day in 1965. Evans rushed his way to the second leading rusher in the RMAC, 102 yards per game, behind a Westminster halfback averaging 130 yards.

The Tiger defensive unit has been a spark in the overall play of Fort Hays and last Saturday provided emphasis to the "Big D" boast of being better than the 0-6 record indicates. Against Northwest Missouri, the Bengal defenders dropped Bearcat ball carriers seven times behind the line of scrimmage and recovered three of six fumbles. Against Washburn, 12 WU ball carriers were dropped for losses and three of four fumbles recovered. In the Emporia game, eight times E-Staters were thrown for losses and the only two fumbler were recovered.

With Southern Colorado, Pittsburg and Omaha University left on the schedule, the Tigers will face three of their four toughest opponents. The other being Colorado State College, the best bet for the Rocky Mountain title. Southern Colorado, if they can get by the Tigers, will shoot for that title by meeting CSC in Pueblo next weekend.

History of the Football Helmet

In his book, "Football: Facts and Figures," Dr. L. H. Baker credits George Barclay of Lafayette College with designing the first football headgear. The first model of what was soon to become an important item of football protective equipment was made for Barclay by a harness maker as a protection for ears. Thus it became known as a head harness.

Prior to the development of the head harness, football players covered their heads with an assortment of headdresses, most of which were used only for adornment. In the 1874 game between Harvard and McGill University of Montreal, the Harvard players wore crimson-colored handkerchiefs bound around their heads, while the McGill squad preferred turbans.

In the intervening years, prior to the introduction of the head harness, the style varied among caps — some visored, some not, stocking caps with small knobs on top, tassel caps, soft woolen caps and others. In most cases the caps were brightly colored in conformance with the school colors.

There was an added twist in 1890 when the Yale players let their hair grow all summer in preparation for the coming season. Other schools also adopted this practice, but it was relatively short-lived.

The game of football was expanding rapidly, being played in high schools and colleges throughout the country, and professional football had made its start with such baseball stars as Rube Waddell and Christy Mathewson playing as early as 1902 for a team organized by Connie Mack. To meet the increased demand for equipment, athletic manufacturers were hard at work designing and developing new and safer equipment.

One of the results was an increasing assortment of head harnesses. The accent was on protection of the head and ears, but some models began to reflect the importance of protection to the neck also. In some cases the ears were protected by flaps attached to the helmet proper; in other cases the helmet was designed to cover the ears. The Rawlings Sporting Goods catalog for the 1909 season described the top head harness (price $3) as being made of fine black horse-hide, with welded seams, heavily padded and with neck protector. The word "helmet" was beginning to make an appearance as some head harnesses were listed as "helmet patterns."

The year 1917 saw the introduction of a head harness offering more neck protection than ever before. The rear of the helmet came well down over the neck and was described as a "rear extension to protect back of neck." The new model also featured a leather forehead sweat band and a padded chin piece.

In 1925 the Zuppke model helmet, designed by the famous University of Illinois coach, was introduced. Light in weight, the new helmet featured a sponge rubber crown, reinforced with felt and fibre. The helmet was made of tan color strap leather and sold for $12. Many suggestions and ideas on construction, especially safety features, came from leading coaches such as Zuppke, Bob Alexander of Georgia Tech, and many others responsible for the rapid growth of the sport.

In the late 20s, the 30s and early 40s, leather helmets continued to predominate. Some models with fibre crowns were introduced; later, helmets with leather crowns reinforced with fibre were popular.

An innovation in the 1929 helmets was the Nose Protector helmet. The nose protection part of the helmet

The Challenger Shoots for Rocky Mountain Status

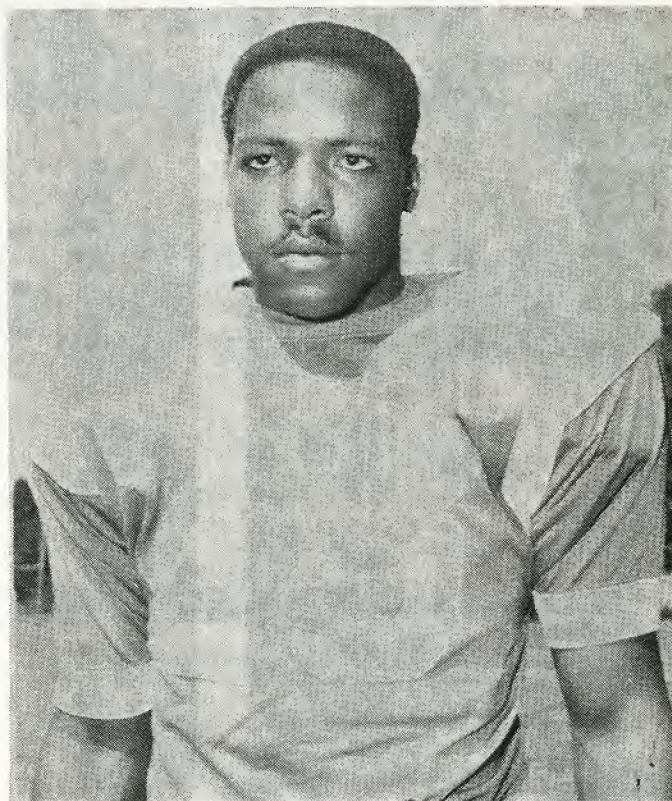

Looking at the Southern Colorado Indians, the Tigers could act as "the spoiler" in the Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference. An upset victory for the Tigers would seriously crimp Southern's chances as they enter the game 3-1 overall and 2-1 in conference play with the BIG ONE, Colorado State College, next weekend at Southern Colorado in Pueblo.

Southern brings to Hays a fine ground attack based on the running of Al Brooks, a 5-10 200-lb. fullback, and Matt Young, 5-11 180-lb. halfback. Young paces the club with 360 yards in four games for a 4.09 yard average per carry. Running mate Brooks has 288 yards for a 3.09 average per tote. Young also ranks as the top Southern scorer with 24 points on four touchdowns.

Scores of the games Southern Colorado played in indicate a moderate offensive punch but a good defensive effort. They lost to Pittsburg State in the opener 21-17 but bounced back to defeat Washburn 21-20, Western New Mexico 23-6 and Emporia State 10-9 in a snow storm at Pueblo. The passing game is accurate as quarterback Barry Loos is 13 for 29 for 181 yards and one TD. His percentage of completions is .541.

Break your beard in right.

Right now your beard is in the formative stage.

You can shave it with a razor blade like your father does. And each time you do your beard will grow back a little more difficult. Until one day shaving's no longer a chore. It's an agony.

Look no further than your father's face for proof.

But fortunately, you're catching your beard at an early age. You can break it in to be just as shaveable 10 and 20 years from now as it is today.

With a REMINGTON® Lektro Blade shaver.

And if you think the kind of shave we're selling won't be close enough for you, you're wrong.

Our new Lektro Blade shaver has very sharp disposable blades. Just like a razor. So it gives very close shaves. Just like a razor.

What's more, you can dial a Lektro Blade shaver into a sideburn trimmer.

Admittedly, it costs more to buy our electric shaver than a razor and some blades.

But it's a good investment.

These next few years will determine how you and your beard will get along for the rest of your lives.†

The Story of the Helmet....

was made of heavy sole leather. It completely covered the nose and was attached to the helmet proper at the forehead and at the sides of the helmet. There were two large openings for the eyes. Padded on each side of the nose with sponge rubber, the nose piece was reinforced with soft steel that could be bent to the individual's profile.

Helmets light in weight came into being with the incorporation of sponge rubber padding, fibre reinforcing straps and lighter strap leather into the construction. In 1937, the first one-piece fibre crown models were offered, some corrugated for greater strength. Web and duck hammock suspensions became a vital part of the football helmet in the late 30s, in addition to spot padding in vital areas and cantilever type protection of the ear areas.

After World War II the plastic helmet, developed along the principles of the helmets worn by aviators during the war, made its appearance in the football world. Cooler, lighter and stronger, the new helmet represented a radical departure from previous helmet designs. Available in a wide array of brilliant colors, the new style quickly supplanted the traditional leather helmet.

In 1958, removable padded suspensions made possible additional seasons of use for a helmet. As helmet paints improved, many styles of striping and designs began to appear on the gridiron. 1958 also marked the introduction of the nylon shell with padding held in place by screws and snap fasteners instead of being sewn to the shell.

Rawlings Cy-Co-LITE plastics made its bow in helmet shells in 1960. This special material passed all extreme temperature and impact tests and proved to be lighter than the tenite shell. Because of its performance on the field as well as in the laboratory, Cy-Co-LITE was chosen as the material to be used in the new helmet shell introduced by Rawlings in 1965 after many years of research and study.

The game of football is growing by leaps and bounds in popularity, and a tremendous increase in participation has resulted. Realizing that the chance of injury has increased with the growing number of players, designers continue to strive for perfection and continuing improvement in producing football helmets and other football equipment.

wins football games. Planning is also the secret to your financial security. Let us help with all your financial needs.

Winter Starts 7th Year; Six Lettermen Return

Wrestling at Fort Hays State began last week with Coach Dave Winter at the helm for the seventh year.

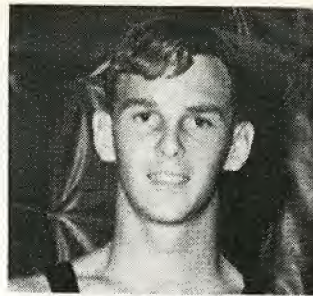

Winter has a composite 47-37-0 mark with his best Tiger squad posting a 14-3 mark in 1964-65. Last year the FHS grapplers won six meets while losing five.

Gone from last year's squad is NAIA national champion Leland Tresner of Garden City. Tresner won the 152-pound national championship March 8th in Omaha at the NAIA National Championships.

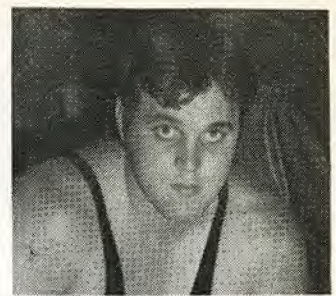

Tresner posted a 22-2-1 mark during the 1968-69 season and chalked up a record of 34-9-1 since transferring from Garden City Junior College.

Six lettermen from last year's squad return for another season of wrestling. They are Mike Holliman, St. Francis sophomore, 123 pounds; Gary Ulmer, Norton senior, 130 pounds; Bob Brock, Goodland junior, 160 pounds; Steve Miller, St. Francis sophomore, 167 pounds; Ken Dieck, Waukegan, Ill., senior, 177 pounds, and Grady Elder, Salina junior, heavyweight.

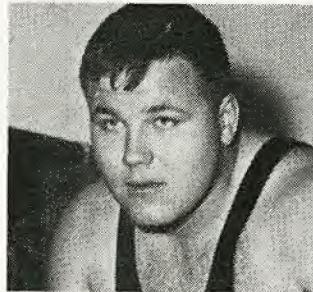

New faces on the squad include Steve Merritt, Newton freshman, district and regional champion and two-time runner-up in the state meet and Rick Doran, Harlan, Ia., freshman, who finished his high school career with a 20-3 mark and qualified for the Iowa state wrestling meet. Both Doran and Merritt are expected to bolster the 1969-70 wrestling squad.
